Chafing Dishes
Five o'clock Tea Kettles

A whole counter full of chafing dishes five o'clock tea kettles and accessories. To remind you that Christmas is not so very far off.

There can be lots of chafing dish parties with their jolly good times between now and Christmas, so perhaps you'd better not wait.

The chafing dishes are priced from $5.00 to $12.50. The $5.00 dish has wrought iron base; the higher priced ones have nickel bases. All have the water dish and cooking pan with ebony handles.

Five o'clock tea kettles are $5.00 to $11.00. One at $8.00 is suspended from a large, gracefully-curved wrought iron base. Most of the others are urn shape. The urn shape doesn't take so much room on the five o'clock tea table.

Baking dishes, porcelain lined, $5.00.

Companions—good name for them.

They are handy, compact, alcohol-heating contrivance, for boiling eggs, making tea and coffee heating water, etc., etc. $2.50 and $3.75.

The Accessories

Omelette dishes, $3.50.

Toasters, $2.50.

Chafing dish forks, $2.00.

Chafing dish spoons, $2.00.

The plating on all these things is nickel on copper. All nickel plating looks alike on the outside, but it isn't good unless copper is underneath.
